CIB W113 Law and Dispute Resolution
Invitation Call for abstracts
CIB World Congress, 17-21 June 2019, Hong Kong

W113 hosts regular legal research symposia at major international built environment research conferences around the globe. This working group is a worldwide community of legal scholars working in the fields of property, construction and the built environment. Our focus is on the application of law in these contexts and our membership includes those with expertise in property, construction, housing, planning and environmental law as well as the many other areas of law which impact on the wider built environment.

Our activities embrace all forms of legal scholarship including theoretical, doctrinal, empirical and comparative law research. Our international membership provides us with a unique opportunity to undertake collaborative comparative law studies across multiple jurisdictions and we welcome enquiries from legal scholars worldwide who would be interested in working with us on future projects.

Papers are invited from academics and practitioners for the 2019 legal themed session which will address legal topics affecting the built environment including:

- Construction Law
- Property & Planning Law
- Building Regulation & Control
- Legal Aspects of Building Information Modelling
- Environmental Law
- Legal Education in Construction & Property
- Alternative Dispute Resolution
- Professional Liability & Ethics

Other areas that are relevant to law and dispute resolution within the built environment will also be considered.

All researchers are invited to submit abstracts to the CIB World Congress in Hong Kong, June 2019, <http://www.wbc2019.hk/>

Abstracts are to be submitted at http://www.wbc2019.hk/call_for_paper.html under commission W113, latest September 15, 2018.
